Hatteras, N. C., Aug. 30 (P) — North Carolinians batted down along the coast today for a big blow expected to hit tonight.

Hurricane warnings were displayed from here to Wilmington as a weather bureau advisory placed the center of the tropical hurricane about 250 miles south of here and moving north-northwest or north at 10 to 12 miles an hour.

Storm warnings were displayed as far north as the Virginia Capes and as far south as Charleston. The Miami Weather Bureau, however, said the danger south of Wilmington "seems to be diminishing."

Center Nears Hatteras

Present indications are, the bureau said at 10 a. m., that the center will pass over or very near Cape Hatteras tonight, probably before midnight.

Highest winds were estimated at 115 miles an hour with hurricane force winds covering a radius of 50 to 60 miles around the center.

Along the coastal area threatened by the twisting windstorm residents made what preparations they could against the hurricane. Small boats were dragged ashore or sent far up rivers and streams. Manteo, on the outer banks, reported hotels and resorts putting up shutters and taking other precautions.

Red Cross On Alert

The Red Cross alerted disaster workers all along the coast and announced at Atlanta 35 special disaster workers were being sent into the threatened area.

Winds were still moderate along the coast this morning, but the Atlantic was choppy. In spots between Oregon Inlet and Cape Hatteras water already had overrun the beaches.

The Cape Hatteras Coast Guard station was evacuated at 10 a. m. Personnel moved 12 miles south of this town of Hatteras and secured their boats.

The Atlantic Life Boat station on Core Banks will be evacuated this afternoon, Coast Guard officials said. Personnel will go to the mainland at Atlantic.

"This is an emergency, warn all interests," an earlier advisory urged.

EMORY D. SELL DIES ON SUNDAY

Emory D. Sell, 72, Littlestown R. 2, a painter by trade, died at his home Sunday evening at 7 o'clock following an extended illness.

He was a son of the late Noah and Caroline (Remhoff) Sell, and was a life-long member of Christ Reformed church, near Littlestown, and served on the board of trustees and consistory. He refused reelection as an elder in 1945 due to declining health.

Surviving are his widow, the former Irene B. Ruth; four children by a previous marriage, Mrs. Ralph Unger, Littlestown R. 2; Mrs. Pauline Stair, Littlestown; John N. Littlestown; Emory W., East Berlin; 11 grandchildren; one brother, Joseph, Hanover, and one sister, Mrs. Lydia Motter, Hanover.

Funeral services Wednesday at 2 p. m. from the Little funeral home, Littlestown, conducted by his pastor, the Rev. John C. Brumback. Interment in Christ church cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Ex-Servicemen Urged To Attend Meeting

Information concerning recent legislation affecting inactive duty and retirement pay will be presented at the meeting of the 901st East Pennsylvania Infantry Divisional Regiment at its meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the basement of Glatfelter hall, college campus. Announcement of the plans for the meeting was made by Col. Edward Nowicki, commander of the new unit.

Col. Nowicki urged all men, both officers and enlisted personnel, who served in any branches of the armed service to attend the meeting. Assignments for the new unit will be announced at the same session.

Two Are Arrested In Drinking Brawl

State police Saturday night were called to break up what they described as a "drinking brawl" between two transient workers at the farm of Donald Garretson at Florida.

The two, Walter Pavlock, of Johnsbury, and Robert W. Arnold, Harrisburg, were placed in the county jail. Given a hearing before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore they pleaded guilty, paid fines of $5 and costs each and made restitution to Garretson of $15 in property damage caused by them during the fight.

GUARD TROOP CAPTURES TWO CAMP AWARDS

Adams county's National Guardsmen returned to Gettysburg Saturday afternoon in jeeps, half-tracks and trucks after two weeks of intensive training at Indiantown Gap.

They brought with them a trophy, won by First Sergeant Clair W. Warner, Hanover, for having the individual high score with the carbine among all non-commissioned members of the 104th Squadron. They also brought with them the honor of having had three men score perfect marks with the 30 caliber light machine gun mounted on the M-8 armored car.

The 56 members of Troop A who attended the second annual post World War II encampment of the guard who won expert, sharpshooter and marksman awards will be presented medals at a special public ceremony September 14 in celebration of National Guard day.

Praises Troop

The trophy won by Sergeant Warner with his score of 182 with the carbine was one of six given by the squadron commander, Major Clair J. Stouffer, Jr., of Harrisburg. The other trophies were won by Troop C, Harrisburg and Troop B, Tyrone. Adjutant General Frank Weber presented the trophies at a battalion review Friday evening at Indiantown Gap.

For the review, command of the troops was turned over to the non-commissioned officers. Sgt. John W. Wolf, New Oxford, who commanded the county troop, drew favorable comment from General Weber for his ability.

1st Lt. William G. Weaver, New Oxford, commanding officer of the county troop paid high tribute to the members of his outfit for their work at the Gap. "No group could have done better with the limited time at hand for training of most of the men prior to the encampment. All of the men did well and the county has every right to be proud of its troop. Particularly do I want to commend the non-commissioned officers. It is due to their splendid work and skill that the encampment was a success," Weaver said.

Repel Surprise Attack

The troop did particularly well in "repelling a surprise attack by infiltrating enemy patrols" while encamped on bivouac, Lieutenant Weaver said. Weaver, Sergeant Pinkbaker, Robert Heyser and Hiram C. Smith were among the invading.

WOMAN'S CLUB WILL Open Season Sept. 15

The Woman's club of Gettysburg will open its fall season with a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. on Wednesday, September 15, at the Hotel Gettysburg when Walter Trout, director of art in the York public schools, will give a chalk talk.

The hostess committee headed by Mrs. G. W. Lefever will be in charge of the meeting which will be open to guests.

BURGESS WILL NAME UNITS ON FREEDOM TRAIN

Burgess C. A. Heiges today announced that he will appoint committees to direct the "Week of Rededication, to know, understand and appreciate our system of government, our American way of life, which has bestowed its blessings upon us" and the two-day exposition of the Freedom-Train here within the next week or ten days.

This announcement was made following three long conferences over the week-end with J. Edward Shugrue, New York city, national director of The American Heritage Foundation, sponsors of the Freedom Train, and Frank Crane, Pittsburgh, Area Director for the Foundation who has been assigned to assist the Gettysburg and Adams county committees. At the conferences with the two Foundation representatives, were Burgess Heiges, Henry W. Garvin, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Henry M. Scharf, manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, and Paul L. Roy, editor of The Gettysburg Times.

ALVAN C. BAKER GETS NEW POST

Alvan C. Baker, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Cemetery, has transferred from the National Park Service, U. S. Department of the Interior, to the Department of the Army and has been assigned to duty as superintendent of the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, Honolulu, with Mrs. Baker and their three children he will leave Gettysburg October 2 by motor for California from where they will sail for their new home in Hawaii.

Vernon S. Lunt, a ranger at the Acadia National Park, near Bar Harbor, Maine, has been assigned by the Park Service to succeed Mr. Baker here. Lunt is a disabled veteran of World War II. He was at Acadia National Park from June, 1933, until July, 1942, when he entered the armed forces. He is expected to report here the latter part of September.

Superintendent Baker will go to Washington September 20 for a week's course of instructions on his new assignment. The new burial plot comprises 56 acres and is being developed to accommodate a number of bodies of Americans who were killed in the Pacific and whose next of kin prefer that they remain interred in the new cemetery.

Mr. Baker has been in Gettysburg since March 6, 1946. He has conducted 420 funerals here.

Estimate 1,500 Saw Campfire Programs

Approximately 1,500 were present for the seven campfires held by the Gettysburg National Park this summer, Dr. Frederick Tilberg, in charge of the programs, announced today.

The series came to an end Sunday night with the showing of a colored motion picture, "Highway to East" at the campfire site on East Cemetery hill. About 250 were present for the affair.

The motion picture, made by the United Airlines, showed scenes of the west coast, the pineapple industry in Hawaii, scenes of various industries in Hawaii, folk dancing, beach and surf sports, Pearl Harbor and similar sights.

Another series of campfire programs will be held next summer, Doctor Tilberg said.

Bendersville Man Sued In Carlisle

A suit to collect $1,381.15 as the result of an automobile collision last July 10 on the Carlisle-Harrisburg pike, near Hogestown, has been filed at the Cumberland county court in Carlisle by Mr. and Mrs. Hilbert Ehrhart, Palmyra, against L. M. Horick, Bendersville.

Mrs. Ehrhart asks for $317.15 to cover cost of repair to her car and $1,000 for pain and suffering due to injuries received in the accident. Ehrhart seeks $11 to cover costs of medical expenses for his wife and $53 for domestic help.

TWO TREATED

Larry Harman, 11, Gettysburg R. 1, was treated at the Warner hospital for a laceration of the face received Saturday evening when he ran into a barbed wire fence.

William L. Morning, 14, was treated for a laceration of the left thumb which was injured Sunday afternoon.

FAIR UNIT AND PARK BOARD WILL MERGE

The South Mountain Fair association and the Arendtsville Union Park board are planning to merge into a corporation to be known as "The South Mountain Community and Fair association." It was learned today.

The go-ahead signal was given to those planning the new corporation Sunday morning when the Zion Reformed church school of Arendtsville voted to authorize the park board to proceed with the proposed organization.

With the establishment of the new corporation there will be a clarification of who owns what at the union park and will provide for greater efficiency all around, it was said. At present the Park board owns most of the grounds in the park and several of the buildings. The South Mountain fair association owns about 23 of the 25 buildings and part of the grounds which make up the park. Most members of board are also members of the fair association.

It was pointed out that the new

BROTHERS ARE GIVEN TERMS IN JAIL SATURDAY

John W. Rock and George Harold Rock, both of Chambersburg, were sentenced to serve 12 months in the county jail and pay the costs while Richard E. Rock, Chambersburg, was sentenced to six months in jail and ordered to pay the costs by the Adams county court Saturday.

All three brothers had been charged with aggravated assault and battery. The court told them there was no mitigation for the offense in that it was a bar room brawl in which the three had "ganged up" on one man.

Charles Pettingill, and Edwin Hess, both of Chambersburg street, were sentenced to pay fines of $100 each and the costs on two charges each of malicious mischief. The fines were imposed in each case on one charge while the other charge was suspended for each.

Strike Violence Scored

Pettingill and Hess attempted to justify their action in throwing stones at trucks of their former employer by stating they were among 14 men on strike who planned to throw stones at the truck. The court's answer to that was that "no strike justifies violence." No employer has a right to use force on an employee and conversely no employee has a right to use force against an employer, the court held. Then questioning the two about further escapades the court decided that they seem to be making a practice

JOINS STAFF OF SOIL DISTRICT

John Francis Meier, Norristown, had two meetings with his new boss this morning.

Meier, a graduate of Penn State, has been employed as a soil conservationist in addition to the two men currently on duty in the Adams County Soil Conservation district. He began his duties this morning by reporting to W. Clayton Jester, of the district board, at the conservation office. A few minutes later he reported at the arbitration room at the court house and again reported to Jester — this time with Jester in his capacity as a member of the draft board.

With the addition of Meier to the staff, the conservation service is planning to widen immediately the scope of its activities. An Austin-Western Model M-99 grader specially adapted to soil conservation work and owned by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service has been brought to the county and is now available to farmers who have contracts with the county soil conservation district.

Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock a demonstration of the work of the grader in making diversion terraces will be held at Jester's farm. Biglerville star route. A tile ditcher has also been secured by the soil conservation office for use on farms in the county. The ditcher was arranged for by contract with the Baughman construction company of Hagerstown.

Those county farmers who wish to use the machines in connection with soil conservation practices on their farms are to contact Richard Long, the conservationist on duty at the county soil conservation district office on Baltimore street.

MRS. E. C. SMITH EXPIRES SUNDAY

Mrs. Gabriel H. Smith, 60, wife of Edward C. Smith, Littlestown R. 2, died at the York city hospital Sunday at 7:35 a. m. where she had been a patient for more than a week. Death was due to a lingering illness.

She was a daughter of the late Valentine and Annie (Kuhn) Todt. Mrs. Smith was a member of St. Aloysius Catholic church, Littlestown, and the Rosary and Blessed Virgin societies.

In addition to her husband she is survived by seven children, Richard, Gettysburg R. D.; Curvin, McSherrystown; Francis, at home; George, McSherrystown; Mrs. Clarence Keller, Gettysburg R. D.; Mrs. Robert Mummert, Hanover, and Raymond, at home; 14 grandchildren; five brothers and sister, William Todt, Littlestown; Frank Todt, Hanover R. D.; Mrs. Edward Weaver, Gettysburg R. D.; Mrs. Thomas Lawrence, Hanover R. D., and George Todt, Hanover; one half-brother, John Todt, Littlestown R. 1, and one half-sister, Lillian Todt, Harrisburg.

Funeral services Wednesday morning, meeting at the late home at 8:15 o'clock with a requiem mass at 9 o'clock at St. Aloysius church conducted by the Rev. Fr. George A. Lavelle. Friends may call at the home Tuesday evening. Members of the two societies will meet at the home Tuesday evening at 7:15 o'clock for prayers.

Registration Schedule Given

Washington, Aug. 30 (P) — Here is the lineup for the draft registration of men 18 through 25:

Born in 1922 after Aug. 30 register today.

Born in 1923 register Tuesday and Wednesday.

Born in 1924 register Thursday and Friday.

Born in 1925 register Saturday or Sept. 7.

Born in 1926 register Sept. 8-9.

Born in 1927 register Sept. 10-11.

Born in 1928 register Sept. 13-14.

Born in 1929 register Sept. 15-16.

Those not 18 by Sept. 19 register on 18th birthday or within five days.

Registration OF DRAFT AGE MEN IS BEGUN

Men from Florida and California were the first to be listed here this morning at the beginning of registration for the forthcoming draft.

School teachers who are acting as registrars, Miss Margaret McIlhenny, the draft board secretary, and W. Clayton Jester, of the draft board, found about 20 registrants waiting for them when they opened the arbitration room at the court house at 8 o'clock this morning.

The first five men who registered were residents of Florida who are working for the C. H. Musselman company in upper Adams county. The next registrant was a Gettysburg college student whose home is in California.

Expect 200 A Day

About 50 had been registered up to noon-time, with the draft board expecting today to be the lightest registration during the entire period. Only men born in 1922 after August 30 of that year are scheduled to register today. Tuesday the larger registrations will begin, with all men born in 1923 to report either Tuesday or Wednesday. Draft officials expect that about 200 a day will be registered starting Tuesday.

All men between the ages of 18 and 26 must register during the current registration period on the dates set for the men to appear according to age, draft board officials pointed out. The men must register whether they are citizens of the United States or not. They may register wherever they are no matter where their home may be, the board added. Thus all men in the age limits in Adams county, whether they are citizens or not, or whether they are residents or not, are to register at the arbitration room at the court house. Similarly Adams counties who are in some other section may register there on the dates set for them to sign up for the draft.

Registration Schedule Given

Washington, Aug. 30 (P) — Here is the lineup for the draft registration of men 18 through 25:

Born in 1922 after Aug. 30 register today.

Born in 1923 register Tuesday and Wednesday.

Born in 1924 register Thursday and Friday.

Born in 1925 register Saturday or Sept. 7.

Born in 1926 register Sept. 8-9.

Born in 1927 register Sept. 10-11.

Born in 1928 register Sept. 13-14.

Born in 1929 register Sept. 15-16.

Born in 1930 before Sept. 19 register Sept. 17-18.

Those not 18 by Sept. 19 register on 18th birthday or within five days.

Registration OF DRAFT AGE MEN IS BEGUN

Men from Florida and California were the first to be listed here this morning at the beginning of registration for the forthcoming draft.

School teachers who are acting as registrars, Miss Margaret McIlhenny, the draft board secretary, and W. Clayton Jester, of the draft board, found about 20 registrants waiting for them when they opened the arbitration room at the court house at 8 o'clock this morning.

The first five men who registered were residents of Florida who are working for the C. H. Musselman company in upper Adams county. The next registrant was a Gettysburg college student whose home is in California.

Expect 200 A Day

About 50 had been registered up to noon-time, with the draft board expecting today to be the lightest registration during the entire period. Only men born in 1922 after August 30 of that year are scheduled to register today. Tuesday the larger registrations will begin, with all men born in 1923 to report either Tuesday or Wednesday. Draft officials expect that about 200 a day will be registered starting Tuesday.

All men between the ages of 18 and 26 must register during the current registration period on the dates set for the men to appear according to age, draft board officials pointed out. The men must register whether they are citizens of the United States or not. They may register wherever they are no matter where their home may be, the board added. Thus all men in the age limits in Adams county, whether they are citizens or not, or whether they are residents or not, are to register at the arbitration room at the court house. Similarly Adams counties who are in some other section may register there on the dates set for them to sign up for the draft.

Teachers Helping

Registrars who volunteered for duty at the arbitration room today included Lloyd R. Hartman, Miss Beatrice Pfeffer, Miss Grace Sachs, Miss Louise Ramer and Miss Helen

FAIRFIELD MAN WEDS IN YORK

In a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Dr. Gerald G. Neely in Christ Lutheran church, York, Miss Helen Catherine Slonaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Slonaker, York, became the bride of Ralph Eugene Stahley, York son of Mrs. Annie Stahley, Fairfield, at 7 p. m. Saturday.

The bride was attired in a two-piece white palm beach suit with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Ira Slonaker, York, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor in a two-piece powder blue crepe dress with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Earl Yohe, Spring Grove, presented a 15-minute organ recital preceding the ceremony, including "Because," "Indian Love Call," and Schubert's "Ave Maria."

BIG PLANE HITS CLIFF IN STORM SUNDAY; 36 DIE

Winona, Minn., Aug. 30 (P)—A human chain will wind its way down the steep and rocky side of a 150-foot ravine today to bring out the mangled bodies of 26 persons trapped in the wrecked fuselage of a Northwest Airlines plane.

The bodies of 10 others were carried out last night.

The 36 persons died as the storm-raked airliner crashed atop a wooded Mississippi river bluff near here late yesterday and toppled into the ravine.

Remove 10 Bodies

The crash occurred between Winona and Fountain City, Wis., on the Wisconsin side of the river during the height of a severe electrical and rain storm.

Coroner Herbert F. Stohr of Alma, Wis., said ten bodies were removed to Alma before recovery efforts were halted last night. He said that the sides of the ravine were so steep that he must use a human chain of workers to remove the bodies still trapped in the tangled wreckage. The wooded and rocky ravine has 45-degree slopes.

The plane was one of the airline's newer Martin 2-0-2 ships and was bound for Minneapolis from Chicago with 33 passengers and three crew members.

HEAT RECORDS SET HERE; HITS 90 AGAIN TODAY

After setting new heat records over the week-end, the mercury climbed above the 90-degree mark this afternoon for the sixth consecutive day.

But the weather man promises at least temporary relief with a forecast of "partly cloudy and cooler tonight and Tuesday."

First break in the severe heat wave came for this section Sunday afternoon when clouds covered the sun and developed into a thunder-shower shortly after 5 o'clock. The rainfall totaled only .05 inches but was accompanied by welcome cooling breezes.

Saturday Night Hottest

Saturday's high of 99 degrees made it the hottest August 28 on record here in 46 years while Sunday's high of 96 degrees equalled the previous high for that date set 22 years ago.

Saturday night was the hottest so far this year in Gettysburg. The lowest temperature recorded here that night was 73 degrees.

Lighting that accompanied Sunday's shower put the borough's overhead street lighting system out of commission until about 11 p. m. and the telephone company reported a number of fuses blown by lightning in and around Gettysburg and in the Biglerville section.

Cool Air Coming

Chicago, Aug. 30 (P)—Cool air from Canada fanned out over parts of the nation's heat belt today and brought some relief to sweltering millions.

DODGERS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD FROM BRAVES

By JOE REICHER

(Associated Press Sports Writers) The Dodgers did it. They accomplished what many experts said would be impossible.

In last place on July 2, Burt Shotton's Brooklyn club was perched in first place today following a tremendous two-months drive out of the National League cellar.

They did it the hard way too, sweeping a doubleheader from their arch rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals in their home lair, 12-7 and 6-4.

Of course, the Brooks got help from the Pittsburgh Pirates who knocked off the erstwhile leader, the Boston Braves, twice, 6-1 and 5-2.

Six Hits By Robinson

The Brooks now are three percentage points ahead of the Braves, who lead the third-place Cards by a game and a half. Pittsburgh established itself as a definite pennant threat by climbing to within three games of the top.

As in many of their victories during this spectacular surge which saw them win 39 out of 55, the Dodgers yesterday were paced by Jackie Robinson, their star negro second baseman. Robby, who has zoomed his average from .275 of two months ago to an even .300, cracked out six hits including a home run in the twin bill.

The second game went 10 innings before the Brooks put over the clincher. A pinch single by Arky Vaughan drove in Pete Reiser with the deciding run. George Shuba also scored when Catcher Del Wilber fumbled Enos Slaughter's throw to the plate on the play.

Reds Beat Giants

Harry Brecheen and Red Munger were the losing hurlers. Paul Minner, a secondary hurler, was credited with the first game victory for the Dodgers. Hugh Casey, in relief, got the second victory.

Rookie Bob Cheshnes of Pittsburgh bagged his 11th triumph against only three defeats in limiting the floundering Braves to seven hits. He had a shutout until the ninth when Earl Torgerson singled and scored Boston's lone run on a Jeff Heath triple. A four-run rally in the seventh inning won the nightcap for Vic Lombardi.

Cincinnati's Reds extended the New York Giants' losing streak to six straight, whipping Leo Durocher's men twice by the same 3-2 score. Pinch hitter Danny Litwiler singled home the winning run in the last of the ninth in the first game, and pinch hitter Augie Galan did the same in the fifth inning of the second game. The nightcap was called with two out in the last of the fifth because of rain.

Chicago's tall-end Cubs divided a pair with the Philadelphia Phils, taking the second game, 10-4, after Walter Dubiel of the Phils won a 1-0 hurling duel from Bob McCall of the Cubs.

The pennant picture in the American league remained unchanged as every club divided a doubleheader.

Boston's pace setting Red Sox split with the St. Louis Browns in Boston, winning the opener 10-2, but losing the nightcap, 12-4. A three-run homer by Ted Williams and a grand slammer by Birdie Tebbetts helped Joe Dobson finally win his 14th game for the Sox. Les Moss, Don Lund and Al Zarilla bled four-baggers for the Browns who collected 20 hits off Mickey Harris and three successors in the nightcap.

The runner-up New York Yankees gained a split with the Detroit Tigers at the Stadium, winning the second game, 11-10, after Detroit had come from behind to take the opener, 9-6. The Tigers, trailing 9-0, came up with five runs in each of the sixth and seventh innings to nab a 10-9 lead. However, Bill Johnson socked a two-run homer in the seventh to win for the Yankees. A three-run homer by Hoot Evers had given the Tigers a temporary lead. Dick Wakefield's pinch hit home with one on base provided the winning runs in the first game. The split left the Yankees still a game and a half behind the Sox.

After Bob Lemon had pitched the third place Cleveland Indians to a 6-0 shutout over the Washington Senators, the Nats came back to win the second game, 5-2. Jake Early's three-run double off relief pitcher Bob Feller overcame Cleveland's 2-0 lead. Lemon racked up his 18th victory of the season and his ninth shutout with a three-hitter in the opener.

The fourth place Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Chicago White Sox, 5-4, in the first game, but the American league cellar-dwellers came back to win the second game, 7-2.

"Richie" Ashburn Lost To Phillies

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—Manager Eddie Sawyer says a broken finger will keep Richie Ashburn out of the Philadelphia Phillies lineup for "three or four weeks" and perhaps the rest of the season.

The rookie outfielder broke the fourth finger on his left hand when he slid into second base Saturday in Pittsburgh.

"We certainly hate to lose a sparkplug like that youngster," lamented Sawyer. "He's got what it takes."

Ashburn had been hitting the ball at a 333 clip, topped only by Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National league batting race.

CONEWAGO VFW, CASHTOWN WIN PLAYOFF TILTS

The Conewago VFW and Cashtown won the opening games of the two semi-final series for the championship of the South Penn Baseball league Sunday afternoon.

At Arendtsville the VFW outfit came from behind to upset Heidersburg 9-5. Heidersburg took a 2-0 lead in the third frame but the home team pushed over three runs in the fifth. Heidersburg knotted the score with a tally in the sixth and then Conewago pounded over four runs in the last half of the same frame and added two more in the seventh to win handily.

Singley, Conewago hurler, paced his team's 13-hit attack with three safeties. Weigle, who started on the mound for Heidersburg, and Ecker each collected three hits for the losers.

Cashtown tripped Greenmount 8-6 in a game played at Cashtown.

Rally Clinches Game

For six frames it was a tight game with Cashtown leading at that time 4-3. The victors sewed up the decision with four runs in the last of the seventh. Kump led off with a double. After Combs went out D. Bucher poled a long triple. An out by D. Kuhn was followed by a single by Hershey, double by D. Bucher, an error, a hit batsman, a single by H. Bream and double by Kump.

Greenmount picked up a pair of runs in the eighth and in the ninth threatened to pull the game from the fire. G. Fair opened the ninth with a single and Kennel doubled for a run. J. Fissel singled. E. McDonnell was safe on a fielder's choice. Altemose sent a short fly to center which D. Bucher speared on a running shoe-string catch and he raced to second base to double J. Fissel unassisted.

Next Sunday the same teams will again clash in the second of their three-game series, the tilts being listed for Heidersburg and Greenmount.

Final scheduled games in the Adams County Baseball league were played Saturday afternoon.

This evening at 8:30 o'clock a meeting of league officials will be held at the American Legion home on Baltimore street to plan for the championship playoffs between Orrtanna, Hanover, Littletown and McSherrystown, who finished in that order during the regular season.

A three-run rally by Orrtanna in the last of the eighth inning gave it a 4-2 victory over Hanover on the former's field Saturday afternoon.

Reds Deardoff hurled his first game for Orrtanna and pitched four-hit ball for seven innings until forced out in the eighth due to the heat in favor of Baltzley.

Orrtanna scored a run in the sixth on a single by Singley, walk to L. Wetzel and single by C. Rebert. Hanover pushed over a pair in the seventh but in the eighth Orrtanna clinched the game on a hit by Cease, base on balls to Baltzley, a single by C. Rebert and double by Deardoff.

Bendersville laced Emmitsburg 11-1 at Emmitsburg while New Oxford nosed out Fairfield 2-1 at New Oxford. York Springs was awarded a forfeit over Gettysburg.

The postponed game between Emmitsburg and Fairfield on the latter's field Sunday was not played.

"Uncle Charlie" Graham Dies At 70

San Francisco, Aug. 30 (AP)—"Uncle Charlie" Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals baseball team and affectionately regarded by many as the Connie Mack of the minor leagues, died early yesterday.

Funeral services for the 70-year-old dean of independent, home-owned baseball will be held Tuesday.

Graham died of pneumonia at a hospital where he had been taken Friday. His condition became critical Saturday and word spread through the baseball world that the end was near.

Charles H. Graham came up from behind the plate to the front office in the career that closely matches Connie Mack's. He was a catcher, manager, owner, and club president in his half century in professional baseball.

Collegeville, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—Thirty holdovers from the 1947 squad were among the 51 candidates reporting to Coach Ray Morrison for start of Temple university's football training camp at Camp Sholom today.

Morrison doesn't seem to be worrying too much about the loss of such backfield stars as Phil Sloburg and Joe Neiman.

Shawnee-On-Delaware, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—Joseph (Bud) Lewis of Philadelphia captured the Philadelphia district PGA title yesterday by defeating Rod Munday of York, Pa., 1 up in the 36-hole finals.

Lewis registered a one-under-par 71 on each of the 18-hole final rounds. Munday scored a three-under-par 69 on the second round after a 77 in the morning.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 30 (AP)—Marv Ward of Spokane, Wash., two-time winner of the national amateur golf title, said the player who negotiates the sinister par three holes of the Memphis Country club successfully the next six days will win the 1948 crown.

Usually the winner in the Simon-Pure Golf tourney is the long hitter who can massacre the par five holes. There are four par three holes here—two on each side.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press) The hotter-than-the weather Eastern league pennant race reached a boiling point today after merely sizzling all season. First-place Scranton takes on runner-up Albany tonight in the first of a climactic three-game series.

Albany trails the leaders by only one game after climbing into second place over the week-end. Also right in the thick of it are the Utica Blue Sox, a mere half game behind Albany and one and a half from the top. Albany completed a four-game sweep over Wilkes-Barre by downing the Barons 6 to 2 and 14 to 0 yesterday.

Scranton, meanwhile, split a pair with Hartford. The Miners nipped Hartford, 2-1, in the first game but absorbed a 10-3 drubbing in the second.

Utica divided its doubleheader against Elmira. The Blue Sox grabbed the opener 8-4 and bowed in the second game 4-3. Binghamton and Williamsport also played to a standoff. Binghamton took the first game 6-2 and Williamsport retaliated in the second 8-5.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Whig Mass Meeting: In another column will be found a call by the County Committee, of a Mass Meeting, to be held on the 22d of September. We hope it will be generally attended. We shall have some very strong speaking, William B. Reed, of Philadelphia, Thaddeus Stevens and Robert M. Bard, it is understood, will certainly be there. Mr. Stevens, in reply to the invitation, says, "It will give me great pleasure thus to meet old friends of Adams, and I shall make everything yield to that object."

Married: On the 22d inst., by the Rev. Mr. Gutelius, Mr. Michael Burkert, to Miss Rachel Smith, both of this county.

At Philadelphia, on Thursday, by the Rev. Dr. Mayer, Rev. Theophilus Starke, to Emma, daughter of Charles H. Baker, Esq.

On the 25th inst., by the Rev. E. V. Gerhart, Mr. Samuel Carbaugh, to Miss Catharine Nunemaker—both of Franklin township.

Emigrants continue to pour into this country in large numbers. On Saturday and Monday for thousand and fifty-nine emigrants arrived at New York, most of whom were from England and Ireland.

The New York City Gas Work, together with four houses occupied by the hands employed in the works, were destroyed by fire on Wednesday afternoon. The inconvenience resulting from want of gas in the evening was very great.

James Parry, Surgeon Dentist, will be at Mr. Ege's, Petersburg, from the 27th of September till the 4th of October; at Mr. Thompson's, Gettysburg, from the 5th to the 12th of October; and at Mr. Agnew's, Emmitsburg, from the 13th to the 30th of October.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
The public schools in this place will open on Monday, September 1.

Barnum spent $10,000 for advertising in St. Louis (purchasing a whole page of the newspaper) and had receipts amounting to $60,000. The moral is brief but pertinent—advertising pays.

The Pic-Nic of the Presbyterian Church and Sabbath School, at Etzler's grove on Wednesday, was a pleasant affair. About 300 persons were present. The excursionists returned in a special train in the evening without accident or anything to mar the pleasures of the day.

Mr. John L. Kandlehart, of this place, has received and accepted the appointment of Principal of the Soldiers' Orphan School at Cassville, this State. Mr. K. is a graduate of Pennsylvania College of the class of 1870, and has the capacity to make a successful educator.

At the last York County Court, Robert D. Armor, Hon. Robert McCurdy, Jonas Johns, Hon. Isaac E. Wierman, Jesse Johns, Thomas G. Neely, John Klunk, all of Adams county, were appointed viewers to view and assess damages occasioned by the location and construction of the Peach Bottom Railway through lands of the Alms-House farm of York county.

Pennsylvania College: The first term of the new collegiate year of this institution opened on Thursday, with an unusually large accession of students. Over forty new students have already entered in the two departments, and others are expected. The Freshman class will number 31 or 32.

There is a good deal of talk about an anticipated strike among the coal miners in the Scranton region. Between the possible strike and the effects of the coal monopolists to force up prices, coal is likely to advance in price. Consumers should lay in their winter supply at once.

Today's Talk

NO TAX—TAX FREE!

None of us is very cheerful about the increasing burden of taxation, caused largely because of the senseless, cruel, Godless, diabolical business of war, that unsettles everything and settles nothing. Taxed for generations for something 'that didn't, and never will, pay. But we—the people, pay. The war lords only laugh up their sleeves at the stupidity of mankind.

Murder is outlawed. Isn't war murder—and worse? Then why isn't it outlawed? The wise ones explain it all, and give their reasons, but they all leave me cold. I want to see a peaceful world, and a happy one. Perhaps the women of the world will end the wars—the men have made a miserable failure. And they furnish the boys without whom all the money and material treasure in the world could not carry on a war.

But I am off my subject, which deals with the tax free things of this world. And what a multitude of them there are! We are not taxed for the air we breathe, nor for the beauty of this earth, which no man owns permanently. For the beautiful days, for the starlit nights, for the sunsets, for the songs of the birds, for the streams, lakes, oceans, mountains—these are the universal gifts to all. They are tax free. If we have the ability to appreciate, we own them all as our own.

There is even a small tax for the book which we buy, but there is no tax on the thoughts that are expressed within, which may well change the course of our lives, or influence us as none in the flesh might. In a single day any of us could look about us and note a thousand things that never have carried a tax.

Our great free libraries and art galleries bear no tax to that one who would drink in their knowledge and beauty. There is no tax on friendship, nor on love. You have to earn both, and each pays big dividends, but there is no tax to trouble you when you take them on. Oh, there is so much that is free, devoid of all tax in this world. Taxes are only represented by money. You still keep your soul—which is immortal!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Big Hunt"

OLD FOGEY
They say to let the baby cry,
But when she does, I wonder why.
There is a difference, they explain,
'Twixt temper and the cry of pain.
But still this always bothers me:
How do they know which it can be?

There's many a night I can recall
I rocked her dad when he was small.
I'd swear, a thousand times or more
With him, in arms, I walked the floor.

And when at last he fell asleep,
Tip-toe into my bed I'd creep.

And was I foolish? Who can say?
That babe is six feet tall today.
To guess, I'm sure we didn't try,
Did pain or temper make him cry.
Hearing him out of bed I'd spring,
Sure that he needed comforting.

If I suggest it's pain, they say
It's temper that is on display;
But when I ask them how they know,
They never have the proof to show.

"Old-Fogey-Grandpa!" they reply,
"Who hates to let a baby cry."

SCHUMAN WILL TRY TO FORM NEW CABINET

By ROBERT EUNSON

Paris, Aug. 30 (AP)—Robert Schuman, out of office as French premier for 32 days, said today he would try to form a new cabinet.

"But," the balding Alsatian said as he left President Vincent Auriol's palace shortly after midnight, "I have adopted the same attitude as M. Ramadier. I am going to examine the situation first."

Ramadier, Schuman's predecessor as premier, spent all Sunday checking over his chances to form a new cabinet. He admitted at midnight he had been unable to convince either himself or French political leaders he was the man of the hour.

If Schuman Fails
France has been without a government since early Saturday when Premier Andre Marie resigned as a result of Socialist disagreement with wage and price moves planned by his finance minister, Paul Reynaud.

Marie, a Radical Socialist (Conservative), had been premier one month. Before him, Schuman, a Popular Republican (Moderate), held the job eight months. Ramadier, a Socialist who preceded Schuman, held office 10 months although he reshuffled his cabinet once.

Political observers believed Auriol was going back over the three and if Schuman failed, Marie would get another chance.

The parties represented by Ramadier, Schuman and Marie had controlled France for two years in coalition. The purpose of the coalition was to keep the Communists on the left, and followers of Gen. Charles DeGaulle on the right from coming to power.

Two Things In Mind
When Schuman said he was going to "examine the situation" he had two things in mind. His first obstacle and the stumbling block that caused Marie's resignation will be to line up a cabinet that will agree on some definite policy.

The second important item Schuman must consider is what to do about a foreign minister. Georges Bidault, foreign minister in the last Schuman cabinet has lost his popularity at home. Schuman himself held the post under Marie.

In the background, too, were new situations threatening to come to the fore.

Paramount among these was a belief growing among the people that only dissolution of the National Assembly and new general elections would solve the crisis. Three local Radical Socialist party meetings have voted for this action.

EGYPTIANS AND JEWS AGREED

Cairo, Aug. 30 (AP)—Jews and Egyptians have agreed to proposals for bringing peace to the neutral areas of Jerusalem.

The announcement was made last night by Swedish Gen. Aage Lundstroem, chief of staff for United Nations Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte. Lundstroem said the agreement would bring to an early end the "ruthless battle" between Jews and Arabs in Jerusalem.

The agreement came on the eve of a special session of the Security Council at Lake Success to discuss the situation in the Holy Land.

Lundstroem said both the Jews and Egyptians had agreed on a proposed arrangement for the neutral zone surrounding the Red Cross area in the Holy City. The zone comprises Government House, the Jewish Agricultural School for Girls and an Arab college.

The general said observers will see that the arrangement is respected and if troops of either party enter the neutral zone "I will consider this a violation of the truce and refer it to the Security Council."

Cesar Ortiz, Lundstroem's press attache, said the withdrawal of troops from both sides of the area was to be effected by 7 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, today. All war equipment and installations are to be withdrawn or destroyed.

Says Oil Profits Vitrally Necessary
Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—The current level of oil profits is "vitally necessary to enable the oil industry to meet the demands being made upon it," says Robert G. Dunlop, president of the Sun Oil company.

In an article in the current issue of his company's publication "Our Sun," Dunlop said the present profits level also is necessary "to assure the consuming public and the armed services adequate supplies of petroleum products at reasonable prices in the years ahead."

Dunlop said this country's record demand for oil products is being met because the industry's profits are sufficient to bear the needed $4,000,000,000 expansion program.

Increased taxation of corporate profits, the oil executive said, would "hobble" the industry's efforts to meet demands and in turn would result in a "continued tight supply-demand situation."

Seventy per cent of the nation's dresses, coats, blouses and furs for women are manufactured every year in New York state.

SPY HUNT IS SHIFTED TO NY FOR MORE DATA

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Congressional spy hunt shifted to New York today for Whittaker Chambers' own story of having landed a government job while drawing pay as a Communist agent.

The new development was unfolded by Chambers himself in secret testimony before the House Un-American Activities committee.

It led Rep. Nixon (R-Calif.) to claim that for the first time the committee now has a "definite, provable link" between the pre-war Red underground described by Chambers and the wartime Russian spy activities related by Elizabeth T. Bentley.

Five-Year Gap
Both Chambers and Miss Bentley have told of serving as Communist couriers. But there was a five-year gap from the time Chambers said he quit the party in 1937 until the Vassar graduate claims she began her spy ring work.

However, Nixon, who summoned reporters to Capitol Hill late yesterday to hear the latest turn of events, said Chambers got his government job from two people Miss Bentley accused.

Nixon declined to go into more than the bare details. He said more information would be forthcoming at this afternoon's New York hearing (1 p. m., EST).

Charges Truman, Clark
Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-N. J.) hinted earlier that the committee had turned up new evidence. He said members were about to get down to the "really important" business of checking on actual spying.

Thomas' comment came as he handed out a report on how the committee has been getting along in its inquiry so far. That report took new cracks at both President Truman and Attorney General Clark.

It said the White House not only has "hampered" the spy investigation at every turn with "obstructive tactics" but will "in no way aid the committee in its efforts to protect the national security."

Clark, the report said, "has been in large part responsible for the growth and power of the Communist conspiracy in the United States" because he has failed to enforce the laws against spying "as vigorously as he should."

Neither Mr. Truman nor Clark had any immediate comment on the report.

The President already has labeled the Congressional investigations a "Red Herring." And both he and Clark have insisted there have been no disclosures of information that had not long ago been known to the FBI and a Federal grand jury.

In its report issued Saturday night, the committee mentioned Miss Bentley's testimony about two spy networks and added: "There is every reason to believe that the committee has merely scratched the surface of these activities, that more of these groups exist than have been disclosed by available witnesses, and that such groups are still operating within the government."

Besides questioning Chambers publicly in New York today, the committee also lined up a series of questions for a mystery witness named J. Peters.

War College Opens Its Annual Session
Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Two civilian experts on Russia are on the staff of the National War college, which opens its 1948-49 session today.

They are Elbridge Durbrow, just home after two years as counselor of the American Embassy in Moscow, and Dr. John A. Morrison, a specialist in the geography of the Soviet Union.

Problems of the atomic age, international relations and advanced military planning will be studied by 114 carefully chosen officers of the armed services and key civilians from several government agencies.

The State department has 17 representatives attending. The Treasury Budget bureau and Central Intelligence agency each have one. The Army, with 36 officers, has the biggest representation.

UN COUNCIL TO MEET ON TRUCE

Lake Success, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Security Council goes into emergency session today to consider the United Nations' shaky truce in Palestine.

Delegates interrupted a month-long recess for the meeting (1:30 p. m., EST), called by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik. As president of the council for August, he acted after the government of Israel asked what the council was doing to halt truce violations.

An American delegation spokesman said no early instructions had been received from Washington on the issue. It was presumed the United States would stand on its previous statement that violators were liable to such punishments as economic sanctions.

Most delegates were surprised by the sudden call and planned to await developments before charting their course of action. At least three of the regular delegates—Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, Alexandre Parodi of France and Jose Arce of Argentina—were reported either in Europe or en route to the September meeting of the U. N. General Assembly in Paris. All have alternates here.

The council agreed August 19 to hold only emergency sessions at Lake Success up until September 1. Cadogan takes over as council president on that date and announced that he hoped no sessions would be necessary in Paris before the assembly opening September 21.

LITTLESTOWN

will be present and there will be an address by Joe Kenney of Doylestown. Following this meeting there will be a get-acquainted hour and an inspection of the high school building.

Change Meeting Date
The Ladies' Aid society of St. Luke's church, White Hall, will meet on their regular meeting night, Wednesday, September 8, instead of September 1 as previously announced. This will be in the form of a watermelon party and will be for the members and their families. Each person is to bring his own table service and a representative of each family is to report the number attending from his family to Mrs. John H. Hartlaub, not later than September 5.

There were no church services in Christ Reformed church on Sunday but Charles D. Sheely, York, a layman in Zion Reformed church of that city, addressed the Sunday school. Next Sunday, the regular schedule of services will be resumed, Sunday school at 9:15 a. m., and morning worship at 10:30 a. m., in charge of the pastor, the Rev. John C. Brumbach. The Women's Guild and the Consistory will hold their monthly meetings on Wednesday, September 8 at 7:45 p. m.

The Rev. Dr. J. M. Myers has announced Harvest Home services next Sunday in Grace Lutheran church, Two Taverns, at 9 a. m. and in St. Luke's Lutheran church, White Hall at 10:15 a. m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson Rahn, daughter, Carolyn, and son, Ronald, Bound Brook, N. J., are spending several days with Mrs. Rahn's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Samuel W. Beck, East King street. Mrs. Rahn was the former Virginia Beck, a former teacher in the Littlestown high school.

600 at Picnic
The Junior choir of St. John's Lutheran church will meet for rehearsal tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the church.

Approximately six hundred members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Littlestown Aerie No. 2226, enjoyed the annual outdoor picnic yesterday in McSherry's woods, near town. Four hundred and fifty pounds of beef were used for the hot beef sandwiches, and other refreshments were also provided. Outdoor sports were enjoyed and music was furnished by a string orchestra.

Miss Myriad Redding, a student nurse at Mercy hospital, Baltimore, returned to her duties after enjoying a two weeks' vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Redding, North Queen street.

Facts About Bramble Fruits

The United States Department of Agriculture recently issued a new Farmers' Bulletin on bramble fruits, entitled "Growing Erect and Trailing Blackberries." This is a combination and revision of three earlier publications of the series. Citizens may obtain free copies by writing their member in Congress.

One of the highlights of this bulletin is a reproduction of a photograph of a 12-year-old field of dewberries in North Carolina that has averaged over 3,200 quarts per acre each year since it came into bearing. When readers remember the prices they have been paying for early blackberries and dewberries over the last several years, the message of this picture cries louder to all who are interested in growing bramble fruits.

A slight departure from custom is stressed in this bulletin by calling the dewberry a "trailing blackberry." This may be a botanical fact, but we doubt that government authorities can induce the public to abandon the long-established name of dewberry. Aside from this somewhat impractical oddity the publication is filled with useful advice and interesting pictures.

Culture of dewberries is proving exceptionally profitable in many regions because they ripen earlier than other bramble fruits. And like cultivated blackberries, raspberries and such varieties as Loganberries and Boysenberries, the dewberry remains productive from the original planting for many years.

One of the major steps in preparing soils for bramble fruits for maximum production as well as long bearing life is to incorporate plenty of organic matter deeply into the soil. Thus, farmers and gardeners who plan to plant brambles next spring should sow winter rye at once and plow the succulent growth under in late fall or early spring. Of course, an abundance of livestock manure will serve the same indispensable role.

Almost all bramble fruits are self-pollinating. That is, they do not require pollen from other varieties.

Soils should be plowed before winter if there are no dangers of surface erosion. Otherwise plowing should be done as soon in late February or early March as conditions permit. Plants should be ordered in early January for March 1 delivery. If soil and weather conditions prevent planting immediately after their arrival, they should be heeled in where the soil is moist but well drained. Planting should be done as early in March as possible.

As soon as growth starts from the pruned-back plants a liberal side dressing of well rotted manure is usually beneficial. Many experienced growers add a side dressing of commercial fertilizer approximating a 6-10-8 strength or something near that proportion. However, if the soil is fertile and well balanced, no fertilizer is necessary.

VETS TO MARK PENNA. WEEK

Harrisburg, Aug. 30 (AP)—Pennsylvania veterans organizations will of serve Pennsylvania Week this year with parades in several cities on two successive Saturdays, it was announced today.

Brig. Gen. Brenton G. Wallace, chairman of the Pennsylvania Veterans general committee, said the Veterans of Foreign Wars has selected September 25 for its statewide program while the American Legion has chosen October 2.

Pennsylvania week will be celebrated this year from September 1 through October 2. Wallace said the state VFW has planned elaborate parades in many cities, including Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. The American Legion is preparing similar events, he added, which will be announced later.

Wallace said local posts of the VFW are inviting Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and other civic units to participate, and that plans already are well developed in several localities, particularly Sunbury and Carbon dale.

Rites Tuesday For Charles Evans Hughes

New York, Aug. 30 (AP)—Managers of the nation will attend funeral service for Charles Evans Hughes, former chief justice of the United States, tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. (EST) at Riverside church.

In accordance with Mr. Hughes' wishes, the service will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, rector emeritus of the church. The service will be open to the public, but burial will be private.

Mr. Hughes died Friday night at the age of 86 at Osterville, Mass.

His funeral will be held at the local Rotary club was cited for its part in the organization, development and maintenance of its cleft palate speech clinic.

A MAN IN THE HOUSE

Chapter 27

Jane had the craziest desire to burst into wild sobbing. Carl's tenderness unnerved her; she had an odd feeling that there was some deeper meaning behind his words. A feeling that this might be a terribly important moment. The moment when they might recapture what they had lost. But their guests were arriving and it was not the time to reach back for the past.

It was not the time for crying, or for putting their love back together again. So Jane simply smiled and said: "Don't Carl. You'll muss my dress."

And then she went downstairs. It was around ten o'clock when the phone rang. The radio was tuned in to a program of old recordings. Jane was dancing with Carl. She was quietly happy in his arms. This is a wonderful moment, she thought. She remembered the first time she had danced with Carl, the night she had met him. That had been another wonderful moment. Perhaps that was the way life was intended to be. Not all high spots, not forever living at concert pitch, as Carl had once put it. Just a magic-kissed, unutterably lovely moment now and again. And in between the still, quiet times, a little dull perhaps, but making the good moments seem all the better when they came.

Carl smiled down at her. "Happy?" he said.

"Yes. Very."

Carl smiled. "You want to know something else, honey? You're beautiful and I love you."

"Do you, darling? Oh, do you?"

"Don't you know it? Do you ever really doubt it?"

"Sometimes I do," Jane said honestly. "Sometimes, of late, I'm not sure of anything."

"I know, baby. His arm tightened around her. "Not even of yourself." A brief flicker of sadness crossed his eyes. It may have been partly pity. For himself? For her?

And that was when the phone rang.

Carl left Jane and went to answer it. A moment later he called her out to the hall. He was putting on his overcoat, pulling up the collar to muffle his face against the storm. Outside the wind was blowing a regular gale. It was not fit to go out in, and already Jane and Carl had discussed putting up their guests for the night. Carl said: "I'm sorry, honey. I have to go out."

Jane said: "Where, for heaven's sakes? You can't go out in this storm. Carl. You'll catch pneumonia or something. Where are you going?"

Helen Talbot had been taken suddenly and violently ill. Her landlady had called. She was being rushed to the hospital in an hour, possibly for an emergency operation. She was asking for Professor Whitfield. Her landlady said Helen refused to be taken to the hospital until Carl came.

If it had been any other night, or any other person. . . But Helen Talbot. Suspicion came newly alive in her, like a snake uncoiling itself to spring. She knew an ugly, dreadful hate. Felt sick with it. She said tightly: "You can't go. I warn you, Carl. Don't go. You promised me tonight. You promised not to let anything interfere with our party."

Carl was jamming on his hat. He said tiredly: "I'm sorry, Jane. Lord knows, I don't want to go. But after all, it's just a party. You can explain to the guests."

"Explain what?" And she began to laugh. "That my student rival developed a pain in her tummy and my husband had to run to her bedside?"

"Don't talk that way, honey. Don't start carrying on."

"I'm not carrying on, Carl. I'm just telling you. Don't go." She said, her eyes flashing and her voice strange: "We aren't playing a game, Carl. What happens now is for keeps. Do you understand? I've put up with a lot on account of that girl. I've swallowed it and tried to kid myself it didn't mean anything. But this is Christmas Eve, it's my party, it's my night. If you leave and go off to her—Why should you go? Why, in heaven's name, should you?"

Carl tried to explain. "Helen's people are in California, Jane. She has no relatives, no close friends in this part of the world. She happens to look upon me as a friend, and I see no crime in that."

"If you go, you needn't come back."

He stood, his hand on the door-knob, and looked back at her. His face was paper-white. He said: "You don't mean that, Jane." But his tone made it a question.

"Yes," she said harshly. "I mean it."

"You're making that kind of an issue out of it?"

"Yes."

"Very well." Now his words came without expression. "It's your home, Jane. It's always been your home, hasn't it?" He studied her thoughtfully before he added: "Would it surprise you to know that recently I've felt like a temporary guest in it? A little more permanent than Ted, perhaps. But still, not quite so permanent as a husband should feel. Good night, Jane. And Merry Christmas."

Chapter 28

Jane went back into the living room. She felt as if she were having a chill. Her hands were like cakes of ice, and so was her heart. Carl has left me, I sent him away, she kept saying to herself, not believing it. She could not accept it, make it come real. She felt nothing except that horrible, icy chill, and as if she were going to be violently ill. She found Ted, who was over by the Christmas tree, charming a young Freshman with a plump face and a giggle.

"Get rid of everyone, somehow," she told him. "Say that I've been taken ill."

She went upstairs to Carl's study, and Ted found her there. She was smoking a cigarette which tasted awful to her. She was walking up and down the room. Ted said, "What's wrong? You look like a ghost. Shall I get you a drink?"

"No—yes—I don't know. Carl's left me," she said.

"Left you?"

"Yes. I told him to. I told him not to come back."

"No fooling?" Ted stared at her. "Yes. He won't be back. He won't ever be back." Saying the words to another person made them come real, at last, and then the tears came. She threw herself down on the old leather couch, the one where Carl sometimes slept when he had been working terribly late and did not want to disturb her. Her body shook helplessly and her sobbing was terrible to hear.

Ted came over and slapped her sharply. "Snap out of it, Jane. You're getting hysterical."

He went downstairs and got some brandy.

He sat beside her on the couch, made her sit up and forced a little of that brandy between her stiff, working lips. After a few moments she got hold of herself. The color began to come back to her face and she tried to smile. "Now tell me what this is all about," Ted said.

When she had finished Ted gave a soft whistle, and the expression on his face was odd. "Well," he said, "this changes everything. And I don't understand what you're crying about, honey. You told him to go, so you must have wanted him to do so."

"No. No, I didn't," Jane said. "I was furious because that girl had sent for him. I was determined he shouldn't go and I thought if I threatened him, he wouldn't. He fooled me. Or maybe I fooled myself."

"I think you're fooling yourself now," Ted said. "You wanted to break up with him, all right. You just don't want to admit it." And he began to laugh, as if it were the best news he'd ever heard.

Jane sat up very straight, her gaze level on him and frowning. "Do you usually whistle and laugh like crazy when a woman's life has suddenly fallen apart? Do you think a woman's breaking heart is such an excruciatingly funny affair?"

Ted glanced at her. "Oh, come off it, beautiful." And he caught her hand. "You don't have to put on an act for me. I'm in on this too, you know. I've been in on it from the start. You've been miserable with that guy ever since I came into the picture, and you know it. You've been in love with me, but you felt sort of guilty about it and didn't want to come right out and admit it."

"Aren't you taking an awful lot for granted?" Jane said.

"Certainly not. What you didn't tell me in so many words, you told me in actions. I've been a little skittish about the whole set-up, I'll grant you that. I told you I was nuts about you, baby, and I am. But also, like I told you, I didn't want to ask you to break up your home for me. It was taking too big a responsibility. I know my own limitations. I knew you and I could be happy for a while, but I never figured I was the kind of a guy to promise a girl any happy-forever-after stuff. If I made you happy for a year, I'd be going good. And I didn't want you blaming me when things began to go wrong. I didn't want you howling at me, 'I left a wonderful husband for you, and now look! But the way things stand now, you couldn't ever say that because—' He grinned—"I could come right back at you and remind you that he left you and I hadn't a thing to do with it. Right?"

"Right," Jane said. "So what?"

"So here's the way I see it now, honey. I told you I was heading West, and I am. I'll look around and find me a job while you do the same."

usual stretch in Reno. Then you meet me in San Francisco and we'll get married."

"And then what?" Jane said.

"Why," Ted grinned, "then we'll have fun. I'll bet you and I can get more fun out of life in a year than the average couple get in a lifetime." Suddenly his face changed, became dark and somehow frightening.

He started to say something else, checked himself, instead pulled her roughly to him, and his kisses, savage and rough and quite without tenderness, rained down on her face. "This is one of the things we'll do," he muttered. "We'll kiss and make love and let the lousy world go by. We won't worry about a damn thing. We'll just enjoy life, enjoy each other, until—"

Chapter 29

Abruptly Jane pushed him away from her. She was looking at him oddly, not so much with distaste as if at someone she had never seen before. "Until we're sick of each other. That's what you started to say, isn't it, Ted?"

"Well," he grinned, "if that should happen—"

"It would happen," Jane said quietly. "And very soon, no doubt." It was happening to her now, before it had ever started. His kisses, which she had dreamed of with self-stimulated ecstasy, were in reality as flat as cold pancakes. They had aroused nothing in her, not even revulsion.

"No," she said, frowning, and her hand held him away from her. "Do not kiss me again, Ted. I don't want you to."

His handsome face looked bewildered, vaguely annoyed. "Look here, honey, now that this golden opportunity has arrived, now that it's okay for us to get down to brass tacks, you aren't going to start playing coy, hard to get. You have not done that up to date," he reminded her. He grinned to take any unpleasantness from the words.

"Why, right along you've all but thrown yourself at my head."

"I suppose I have, at that," Jane said, taking no offense.

"Well, then, why start playing games now?"

"I'm not," Jane said quietly. "I'm all through playing games." She added: "That's what I've been doing for the last three months. I just found it out."

She stared at him thoughtfully, started to speak, then shook her head. There was no use trying to make him understand that she was not in love with him and never had been. It was difficult enough to make herself understand it.

She remembered their talk that night, out at Aladdin's Lamp, and some of the things Ted had said. They had sounded very wise at the time and they were wise. He had told her that the trouble with her was her youth, that she was playing with dreams, that she was in love with her husband and hadn't the wisdom to realize it. It had all been so true, so terribly true, and she saw it now for truth.

But recalling Ted saying the words, they had now a hollow ring, as if they might have been something he was parroting from a book he had read.

He would be quite willing to take her now. Now that she could never say she had given up any great thing for him. Now that the terms, a man who had simply married a woman after her first husband had walked out, married her while she was on the rebound, so to speak, would always have the upper hand. And too much could not be expected of him.

Still watching him, Jane thought: Ted's all right, for what he is. But the trouble was, he had never grown up and probably never would. He would never know great responsibility because he would always steer his course carefully away from it. He would never love any woman enough to be hurt by her, because he would never love any woman as much as he loved himself.

He was handsome, gay, charming. He epitomized the elusive, romantic love about whom every woman dreams in forbidden moment—and very little else. What did I ever see in him? Jane asked herself.

Nothing. The answer was ready, waiting for her, now that she was

PA.'S INDUSTRY IN JULY SLUMP

State College, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—Pennsylvania's industrial activity suffered a slight slump during July, but still hit a peak exceeded only by three war years.

The Pennsylvania State College Bureau of Business Research said today that the index of industrial activity stood at 188 as compared with a revised figure of 194 for June, and of 178 for July of last year.

The index is based on coal production, employ hours in manufacturing and in industrial power sales.

Improvement from June to July was noted in factory payrolls, employ hours, bank deposits, new car and truck sales, and anthracite coal. Declines, meanwhile, were registered in postal receipts, power sales and insurance sales.

Carloadings, bituminous coal, steel production, and factory employment all reported declines from June to July in the face of an expected seasonal improvement, the bureau said.

Bituminous coal, steel production and carloadings apparently were still feeling the after-effects of the labor dispute and shut-down in the coal industry, the bureau explained, adding that the continued rise in the cost of living also might be cited as an unfavorable factor.

However, all-in-all, only the war years of 1943 to 1945 showed a better July industrial record, the survey disclosed.

coming awake to reality again. Nothing real, nothing that she actually wanted.

She had had all the real things when she had had Carl, their happiness. But there came a time—in every woman's life, she supposed—when the realities seemed a little drab, a little boring, failed to measure up to what you had once expected of them. So she had reached out blindly, foolishly, hoping to capture the quality of a dream world, a story book hero. For such a world of illusion, for such a character, Ted was made to order.

Jane said, smiling faintly: "Ted, thank you for offering to marry me. Thank you for everything. Only I guess you don't really understand. I love my husband. And if I can't have him back, I don't believe any other man could take his place. I think you'd better go now."

Ted said, scowling: "Is this the brush-off?"

"Why, yes. I suppose you might call it that." She didn't even need to say she was sorry. There was nothing to be sorry for—except herself. Ted wouldn't be hurt. He would never be hurt deeply enough for it to matter.

He got up, looking angry. His heart was not greatly hurt at having her send him away, but his vanity was and he didn't like it. He said, like a frustrated and denied child wanting to hit back to get even: "Okay, if you don't want me, that's okay. If you don't want me, there are other women who do. Unless all the doctors in this burg are screwy, Pauline Clark is due to be a widow any day now. When it happens, she's dusting out of this town, and fast. She and I may go together."

"Fine," Jane smiled pleasantly. "I think you and Pauline would make out beautifully together." She spoke as if she didn't mind the idea in the least. And she didn't. Thank heaven, she was awake to reality at last, even if it was only the reality of her own loss and heartbreak.

Chapter 30

Jane awoke the next morning to snow still falling from a gray sky, to an earth blanketed still and deep in white, and to find herself burning up with fever. It was a moment before she opened her eyes to the bed next to hers, and the realization that Carl would not be sleeping in it again. I sent him away, she thought bleakly. I deliberately killed his love by acting the fool, and then I sent him away.

The tears came, spilling hotly down her cheeks.

It was Christmas morning, but she did not remember that at first and when she did it did not seem to matter. The telephone rang and her heart jumped. Maybe it was Carl calling. But it was only Aunt Mae who said, in her brisk voice: "Merry Christmas, Jane dear. Now what's all this nonsense about you and Carl? He phoned me about an hour ago. Talked some nonsense about you and him separating. Said he was taking an afternoon train for some place out West where he's been offered another job. It seems he's been offered Dr. Ross' place, definitely, but he's turning it down. He wanted me to tell you he'd write you later what to do with his books and papers. The man sounded absolutely demented. Well Jane, why don't you say something?"

"I can't," Jane gasped. "Aunt Mae, I think you'd better come right over, if you can get here through the snow. I think I'm going to be ill. I feel so—so dizzy."

Pneumonia, the doctor said cheerfully. Well, nothing to worry about. They made short order of pneumonia these days, what with all these new drugs. Four, five days, and the worst of it should be over. Meanwhile, however, no visitors. No emotional excitement. No one would be allowed in her room except Aunt Mae, and the night nurse, if they could get a night nurse. Which they couldn't.

Well, the doctor was right. The worst was over in four or five days. But after that, instead of picking up strength rapidly as she should have, Jane remained listless, indifferent to everything that was going on around her. She didn't feel like getting out of bed, she said. And she wouldn't even try.

Aunt Mae sat down beside Jane's bed. "You're eating your heart out over that husband of yours, aren't you? That's why you don't get better. Why did you send him away from you to start with? Didn't you have sense enough to know—"

Jane said: "Look Aunt Mae, I don't feel strong enough to be lectured."

"Well, you're going to get a lecture, whether you feel strong enough or not. You love that fellow, and he loves you. It's never too late to do the sensible thing." Aunt Mae said cheerfully: "Jane, you should have had more sense than to pay any attention to my talk. You know perfectly well I'm just a gossip old woman. Old maids get that way. They go about attending to other people's affairs because they haven't any affairs of their own. He loves you, plenty."

"How can you say that?" Jane asked dully. "He could have made same effort to see me, talk things over. He could have stayed around long enough to find out I was going to be critically ill."

"He didn't go away on a train," Aunt Mae said shortly. "And he knew you were ill. Oh, yes, he knows about that."

"That makes it all the worse," Jane said bleakly. "He knows, and he's never come near me. He hasn't sent me a flower. He hasn't even phoned or you would have told me about it. And you've been very careful not to mention his name."

"I haven't mentioned him," Aunt

Mae snapped, "because I listened to that fool doctor. He said I mustn't even mention anything or anyone, that would upset you emotionally. A lot of doctors know about what's good for a woman. Carl hasn't been here," she continued, "because he couldn't get here. He's in the hospital. The poor man had been working himself to death. He was due for a collapse, from work alone. You put on the finishing touches Christmas eve when you kicked him out."

"I didn't," Jane cried. "I never —" She stared. "Did you say hospital—"

"Well, that's the way he took what you said. And it broke him up completely. Christmas day he went to pieces—started for the railroad station, and some friend found him wandering around the streets in the snow, looking dazed. Thought at first he was drunk. He wasn't. He was simply very, very ill. For a few hours he didn't know where he was or who he was."

"Oh," Jane said. "Oh, how awful!"

"Yes, isn't it? And you're partly to blame, Jane. I hope you realize that. If the man weren't so deeply in love—"

"But he—he didn't act as if—"

"Oh, never mind how he acted or what he said. Carl's the deep kind. He doesn't go emoting all over the place, but he feels plenty. Well, now I've told you and the doctor will want to skin me alive for it. But I had to get you up out of that

Shooting Victim's Funeral Is Delayed

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—Burial of Barry Lee Shenberger, 7, accidentally shot to death last Tuesday, was delayed until today to permit the presence of the lad's step-brother, S-Sgt. Stanley F. Shenberger, from Germany.

Police reported Barry Lee died of a 22 caliber bullet wound caused by the accidental firing of a rifle by his brother, Paul, 11.

Funeral services were held Saturday.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Shenberger of Lancaster R. 1, held up burial when notified Sgt. Shenberger had arrived at Westover Field, Mass., on a flight from Germany in an air force plane.

SEEK PRISONER

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—Police pressed a search today for a 22-year-old negro they said slid down a shabby rain conduit from a fourth floor window to escape from the Philadelphia General hospital yesterday. They identified him as Calvin Royster and said he was awaiting a further hearing on charges of highway robbery and aggravated assault and battery. He had been a patient at the hospital since Aug. 13.

Who can pay CASH?

VERY few people who build or buy a new home can pay for all of it in cash out of their savings.

Most businesses have the same problem. Some can save enough out of earnings to expand and improve their plants, but many must go to investors for construction money.

In the telephone business the margin of savings is small even in normal times. Today the margin is smaller than ever—insignificant in comparison with the construction expenditures required to meet public demand for service.

A home builder makes a down payment from savings and borrows the rest. We can't make any down payment. All the money must come from investors—part from people who lend us money through purchases of Bell System bonds; the rest from people who buy stock in the business and become part owners.

These investors have faith in the future of the Telephone Company. They entrust their money to us because they believe their investments will be safe and will pay them a fair return.

They invest on faith. We spend on faith. We have faith that people will always want and need good telephone service—and will be willing to pay a fair price for it.

CITES ODDITIES IN HISTORY OF U. S. POLITICS

By MAX HALL

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—Strange things have happened in this country's political history.

Two years ago a man was elected to the Senate and the House of Representatives on the same day. The man was John Sparkman of Alabama and the date was November 5, 1946.

In 1932, John Nance Garner of Texas was elected to the House of Representatives and the vice-presidency of the United States on the same day.

Curley's Case
James A. Garfield of Ohio was a member of the House, a Senator-elect, and President-elect of the United States—at one and the same time. Garfield resigned from the House, declined the Senate seat, became President and was assassinated four months later.

Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, within a period of eight weeks in 1913, was a U. S. Representative, Governor of his state, and U. S. Senator.

For an entire year, 1946, James M. Curley was mayor of Boston and a U. S. Representative at the same time.

It is not unusual for politicians to be elected to one office while holding another. But unlike Curley they usually resign the first office before assuming the duties of the second. Sometimes they delay the change, however.

In Both Houses of Congress
Huey P. Long was elected to the Senate in 1930 for the term beginning March 4, 1931. But he wanted to keep on being Governor of Louisiana. He finally resigned as Governor on January 25, 1932, and took the oath as Senator on the same date.

Sparkman of Alabama, so far as he knows (and so far as I know) is the only man in history to be elected to both Houses of Congress on the same day.

Sparkman's dual election happened as follows: In the primary election of May, 1946, he won the Democratic nomination for re-election to his House seat. In June, Senator John Bankhead of Alabama died. A special primary was held July 30, and Sparkman won the Democratic nomination for the Senate vacancy.

Two Offices at One Time
The general election was set for November 5. The Republicans entered a candidate for Sparkman's House seat. If Sparkman had withdrawn from the House election and left a vacancy on the ballot, the Republican would have won by default. From the viewpoint of Alabama Democrats, that was unthinkable.

So Sparkman left his name in both races and won both. Then he resigned from the House, forcing a special election in which some other Democrat could get on the ballot.

Though it may not show up in the official records, Sparkman held office simultaneously in the House and Senate for 10 days.

He officially became a Senator on November 6, the day after the election. He resigned his House seat on November 16, after being formally certified the winner of the two elections. But he resigned "as of" Nov. 5, and that date will appear in the record books.

Says World Needs Christian Education
Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—W. H. Shepard, president of the Washington Missionary college, says Christian education is one of the outstanding needs of the world today.

Addressing the closing session of the Seventh Day Adventist church Youth Conference yesterday, he declared:

"Youth should have the balance of a spiritual training in this time when easy cynicism and the careless expression of futility for betterment give the impression that our age is characterized by a kind of spiritual and mental double-mindedness.

"But despite the moral anarchy prevalent, there is a yearning for spiritual guidance. Men want peace but it will not come until the principles of Christ are experienced in the lives of the people."

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—Detectives sought today to establish the identity of a man about 45 years old who plunged to his death from the Walnut-Locust Street station platform of the Broad Street subway yesterday. Emergency crews had to jack up the front end of the train's third car to free the man, snarling subway service for almost half an hour.

Littlestown

Littlestown—The Student Loan Fund committee of which Dr. Joseph R. Riden is chairman will be in charge of the weekly meeting of the Littlestown Rotary club to be held tomorrow evening in the banquet hall of Schottie's hotel, at 6:15 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Creager, Norman Anderson, Baltimore; Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Keagy and daughter, Miss Kathryn Keagy, Hanover, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Creager, East King street.

Registration for new pupils will be held in St. Aloysius school tomorrow morning from 9 to 11:30 o'clock. The school term will open on Wednesday morning.

The members of the societies of St. Aloysius church, of which the late Mrs. Edward Smith was a member, will gather at the Smith home along the Littlestown-Bonneauville road tomorrow evening at 7:15 o'clock for prayers for the repose of her soul.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Randall, Lumber street, included Mr. and Mrs. James Randall, daughter, Carole Ann, Hallam, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Eisenhart, son, Donald, York, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Randall, daughters, Regina and Carolyn, Westminster.

The Health and Sanitation committee of the Chamber of Commerce has announced that the second spraying of the community with a DDT solution, to eliminate disease carrying insects, which was scheduled for tomorrow, will not take place until Wednesday morning. The change in plan is due to the report on weather conditions.

The September meeting of the council of St. Paul's Lutheran church will be held on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the church.

The Rev. and Mrs. Theodore Woodrow Boltz, New Brunswick, N. J., are spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. William J. Yingling, East King street, and also visiting with other friends in town. The Rev. Mr. Boltz was former pastor at Redeemer's Reformed church and was guest speaker at the morning worship service there yesterday, when many ex-parishioners were on hand to welcome him. The Rev. and Mrs. Boltz have just completed a five weeks' trip touring the New England States. The Rev. Mr. Boltz, who is pastor of the Livingston Avenue Reformed church in New Brunswick, exchanged pulpits for that period of time with the Rev. John A. Davis, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich, Conn., and when there was time off from duty, the Boltzes visited points of interest as far north as Bangor, Maine.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy W. O'Shaunessy, daughter, Jean Marie, Lockport, N. Y., spent the week-end with Mrs. O'Shaunessy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rang, Sr., near town. Mr. and Mrs. Rang's daughter, Mrs. Albert Harradine, Rochester, N. Y., was also home for the week-end and remained to spend some time with her parents. Another daughter, Mrs. Charles Straley and children, Jean, Gary and Edward, Hamilton, Baltimore, have been visiting with members of the family for the past two weeks. Sunday visitors at the Rang home were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rang, children, Edward, Jessie and Larry, New Oxford.

Mrs. Thomas O. Weaver, P. Emory Weaver and Miss Florence V. Sell spent Saturday evening visiting with Mrs. Weaver's and Miss Sell's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. Irving Reindollar and family, York.

RALPH CALCAGNI DIES SUDDENLY

Meadville, Pa., Aug. 30 (AP)—Ralph Calcagni, star tackle of the National Football league's Pittsburgh Steelers, died yesterday at Meadville city hospital after undergoing an emergency appendectomy.

Calcagni, who was 26, was admitted to the hospital Friday after complaining of stomach cramps for several days. The emergency operation was performed about 12 hours before his death.

Hospital authorities said he appeared to be reacting satisfactorily. An autopsy was held but physicians said further clinical tests will be necessary to determine the exact cause of death.

Death of the Smithton (Pa.) native, who saw three years of combat as a Marine Corps lieutenant in the southwest Pacific, cast a pall of gloom over the Steelers' training camp at nearby Cambridge Springs. Head coach Johnny Michaelsen, who had visited Calcagni Saturday evening, said: "It just doesn't seem possible. He was such a big, strong boy and a fine athlete. I am deeply shocked and grieved."

"Big Cal," as he was known to the Steelers, joined the team early last season after spending one year with the Boston Yanks. He was rated as one of the best defensive tackles in professional ball. Born in Smithton, Pa., he attended Connelville high school, matriculating at the University of Pennsylvania where he participated in both football and track.

Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—A 13-year-old swimmer was mangled to death in the propeller blades of a motor launch on the Susquehanna river near here yesterday, Coroner Clarence R. Martin reported.

The coroner said the youth, George S. Hill, of Montgomery, R. D., was swimming near the launch and apparently was carried into the propeller. Martin said he would issue a certificate of accidental death.

U. S. MOVE MAY GIVE IMPETUS TO EUROPE PLAN

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Washington's approval of the movement headed by France to create an all Western European parliament with advisory powers may well give the added impetus necessary to bring this historic project to fulfillment.

was fined $25 and ordered to pay the costs.

Whitley L. Norris, Hampton, was fined $150 for the use of the county and ordered to pay the costs on a charge of operating a motor vehicle after suspension of his license.

S. A. Simmons, Gettysburg R. 1, was ordered to pay $100 for use of the county and the costs on a charge of aggravated assault and battery. Lenamae Brooks, Biglerville R. 2, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation due to the fact that she is only 19 when she appeared before the court for sentence on a morals charge.

Other Morals Cases
Lloyd S. Stull, Biglerville R. 1, was sentenced to three months in the county jail and ordered to pay the costs on a morals charge. The court added it would consider a parole in 30 days.

Mrs. Ada A. Altland, McSherrystown, was sentenced to three months on a morals charge and ordered to pay the costs while James L. Kane, East Berlin, was sentenced to nine months and ordered to pay the costs on a morals charge. The court said it would consider a parole in his case at the end of three months.

Tinsy Driver Jailed
Ralph E. Trone, Hanover, was directed to pay $50 for the use of the county and the costs and was sentenced to 30 days in jail on a drunken driving charge.

Joseph Jones, Shamokin, who had pleaded guilty to a false pretense charge in which he was alleged to have collected payment for delivery of 14,000 pounds of coal to two families when he delivered only 7,200 pounds of coal was sentenced to three months in jail and ordered to pay the costs.

Vernon Baker, Gettysburg R. 1, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and ordered to pay the costs on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and was ordered to pay half the costs on a charge of resisting arrest, as had been directed by the jury hearing that case last week.

Woodward Case Held Over
Elwood Miller, Gettysburg R. 4, charged with driving a car after a suspension of his license, was given a suspended sentence and ordered to pay $150 for use of the county and the costs.

William Charles Noel, McSherrystown, charged with the larceny of $150 from the cash box of the Knights of Columbus home in McSherrystown was given a suspended sentence and ordered to pay the costs. The court directed that the case would remain open indefinitely and that if Noel were ever arrested again sentence would be given on the larceny charge.

Jay T. Woodward, South Washington street, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to reveal his identity at the scene of an accident in which Goldie Althoff was killed some time ago, was permitted to withdraw his plea. The case will thus come to court probably in November.

"Anything But A Gentleman"
Sterling Roser, Littlestown R. D., appearing before the court on a morals charge, was ordered to pay $100 for the use of the county, the costs of the case, the lying-in expenses and $6 per week for support of the child beginning August 4. He was also ordered to post a $1,000 bond with surety to guarantee the payments. The court noted in Roser's case that "anyone who goes so far as to buy both rings for a wedding and then welches on the deal is anything but a gentleman." The court added it wished that a jail sentence could be imposed in the case.

Elmer Biddle, who had spent 4 1/2 months in jail for failure to keep up support payments told the court he had changed his mind and preferred to pay rather than stay in jail. He was directed to work out an arrangement with the probation officer by which he could make up the arrearage on his payments.

The charge of open lewdness against Edward F. Minehart, Baltimore, was nolle prossed by the court due to the death of Minehart in an accident.

Two Divorces
A petition for parole of Harold M. Franklin, North Washington street, who had served since May 17, 1947, on a 23-month sentence for contributing to the delinquency of a minor was received by the court but no action was taken. A petition from the Adams county commissioners for approval of plans to build a garage at the new county jail was received by the court.

Decrees in divorce were handed down by the court in two cases. Doris Hess Kemper, Littlestown, was given a divorce from Mark A. Kemper, Gettysburg, and Guy R. Helman, York Springs R. D., was given a divorce from Mary E. Black Helman, Carlisle.

BRADLEY SAYS EDUCATORS ARE FALLING SHORT

St. Louis, Aug. 30 (AP)—Teaching of "two-way democracy" has been neglected by American education, Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today. "Despite the opportunities for free education in these United States, too many young men come into the army apparently ill-informed on the issues and crises that warrant their service," the Army Chief of Staff said. "American education has failed to give many young men an alert appreciation of their liberties and a consequent explanation of their obligations. We have too long concentrated on how to make good, how to get ahead. We have taught our young people how to plunder our resources, how to get jobs, and how to get rich. "We have neglected to tell them that democracy is a two-way street—that with its benefits comes the necessity for also giving service." "War Avoidable" And, Bradley said in a speech prepared for the 49th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, "the army has too long ignored the insides of its men." "During the war," he said, "it was apparent that men fought best when they understood why they were fighting. To give troops conviction and to equip them with ample justification for the service on which they embark, the army will add emphasis to its educational program." Touching on the international situation and the draft revival, Bradley said "a tragically divided world is engaged in a contest of perseverance and in a conflict of ideas." He added: "The United States cannot safely bluff its way through the chancelleries of other nations without risking all that we have gained from victory in the last world war. There is no economy that can justify the need for some other Omaha Beachhead in some future avoidable war."

BERLIN COUNCIL AWAITING WORD FROM KREMLIN

By GEORGE BRIA
Berlin, Aug. 30 (AP)—The city council of divided and blockaded Berlin voted today to postpone meetings until an announcement is made on the Kremlin diplomatic talks and until the Russians promise police protection. Communists broke up scheduled meetings of the anti-Communist council at the city hall, in the Russian zone, twice last week. Russian-controlled German police of the Soviet sector made no effort to quell the demonstrations. The steering committee of the city council said if a commune is issued from Moscow and if police protection is assured, the council will meet at 11 a. m. tomorrow. Otherwise the meeting will be postponed until Friday. If the two conditions are not fulfilled by then the committee said, "other measures" will be considered. This seemed to suggest a meeting in the western sectors under American or British police protection. The Russians put a crimp in city government financing. A restriction of tax payments and the use of tax funds in the Soviet sector was the weapon in this case. In defiance of the Communists, the assembly's senior committee named a five-member delegation to represent Berlin at the constitutional convention for a new western German government opening Wednesday at Bonn. Communist members of the committee walked out when the issue came up. They denounced the Bonn meeting as part of "the splitting of Germany." Pressure Mounts Intensifying their pressure against the administration was an order from the Soviet commandant in Berlin that henceforth all residents of the Soviet sector will pay taxes only in the sector where they live. He further ordered that these tax funds should be used only for the benefit of the Russian sector. The order, which will withhold some revenues from the city, appeared designed to split the city's finance department. Previous Communist maneuvers have forced division of the police, food and labor departments into east and west units. The fresh Communist pressure to oust the elected city government came as Moscow dispatches indicated a four-power committee on the month-long talks dealing with the German situation can be expected shortly. This is the 68th day of the Soviet blockade of the city.

demonstrate its patriotic spirit," Mr. Heiges said. Pin Fine Program "Gettysburg has been selected to inaugurate the second tour of the Freedom Train and the concentrated efforts of the entire organization of the American Heritage Foundation will be blended with our organization to make the program here one of outstanding national significance," he said. Gettysburg's quota for the two-day Freedom Train exposition is $2,500. Newark, N. J., has been assessed $20,000 for a three-day stop, after Gettysburg. Other communities have been assessed comparative quotas. Mr. Heiges explained that the Freedom Train is financed entirely by public and voluntary contributions. No financial assistance is received from the federal government and each community is asked to assume a portion of the expense. "It cost almost $18,000 a week to operate the Train, hence Gettysburg's quota is well below the actual cost," the Burgess said. Mr. Heiges said that he will appoint a number of committees, which, he plans, will be representative of the entire county. 500 Cities Seek Train "This is an Adams county program, not one restricted to Gettysburg, and I am hoping for a generous representation of our county friends on our committees," he said. "More than 500 communities have asked for the Freedom Train and from that group Gettysburg and Adams county was selected as the starting point for the next tour. National Director Shugrue and Area Director Crane assured me that we will have the whole-hearted cooperation of the Foundation in the preparation of our programs for the Dedication Week and the two-day exposition of the Freedom Train. I am confident that we will have an outstanding program," Burgess Heiges said. The entire membership of the committees will meet with Mr. Crane here on September 22.

GUARD TROOP

troops during the raid. Last Thursday evening orders were read that "the following men will break camp and go to Harrisburg for a meeting tonight and Friday." Included in that group were the four members of the local troop who acted as part of the "enemy." Instead of going to Harrisburg, the group ordered out of camp was utilized as the "enemy" for an attack at dawn Friday morning, attacking with flour bags and smoke bombs. Troop A repelled the surprise attack and captured two of the enemy in driving off the raid, Lieutenant Weaver and Sergeant Finkboner. Resume Drills The men will resume their work here with drill Tuesday evening, Lieutenant Weaver announced. Upon their arrival here Saturday they were served cold milk and other refreshments and then paid for their encampment. Others will be given an amount by their employers to make up the difference between their military pay and what they would have earned had they been able to work the two weeks. Many had to attend camp at their own expense. The three men from the troop who got perfect scores in firing the armored car mounted light machine gun were Lieutenant Weaver, Sgt. William R. Forsythe and Pvt. Wendell W. Naugle, Biglerville. Those qualifying for medals in carbine firing were: Expert, Sergeant Warner; sharpshooter, Sergeant William R. Forsythe, Sgt. John W. ## SEES CIVIL WAR PERIL IN KOREA

Honolulu, Aug. 30 (AP)—Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, retiring U. S. commander in Korea, conceded today there is a possibility of civil war in the split country. He added that he thought South Koreans would resist any Communist invasion attempt from Russian controlled North Korea. (As General Hodge was interviewed in Honolulu, the U. S. army in Seoul announced it had intercepted a North Korean broadcast in which the Russian controlled regime threatened to destroy the elected government in the American zone. (The North Korean broadcast heaped abuse on the new republic's leaders, whose election was supervised by a United Nations commission in May. "We have elected our representatives to the supreme peoples' council to destroy these treacherous traitors," the broadcast from Pyongyang said. "Each of our election card will turn into bullets to destroy the puppet government of South Korea when the Central Government of Korea is established.") Hodge, en route to Washington for reassignment after three years in Korea and war duty in the Pacific, arrived here in General Douglas MacArthur's personal plane, "Bataan." He was informed en route that his 85-year-old mother, Mrs. Melissa Hodge, is seriously ill at Carbondale, Ill.

PENNSY PROFITS Philadelphia, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad's net income for the first seven months of the current year was $3,747,353, compared with a deficit of $8,090,27 reported for the similar period last year, the company announced. During the first seven months of 1947 the company said in a statement released today, operating revenue amounted to $563,553,308, an increase of $51,224,849 over the same 1947 period. One-quarter of the total volume of the nation's printing is normally done in New York state.
